

LET'S WORK TOGETHER

NICHQ is ready to help you advance your improvement agenda with innovative approaches and practical solutions.

We can:

Lead large scale systems change

NICHQ has an extensive record of leveraging our change management approach to improve the national, state and local systems that impact children's health. These efforts focus on targeted improvements such as improving maternity care services in hospitals, broad systems-level change such as coordinating early childhood health systems, or clinical improvements such as improving care for children with asthma.

Facilitate collaboration across sectors, disciplines or facilities

Collaboration is a core principle of improvement science and at the heart of transformative change. The pace of improvement is exponentially faster when participants with a shared aim can share lessons learned. NICHQ can help by running in-person or virtual learning collaboratives, serving as the backbone organization for collective impact efforts, or developing innovation teams to test rapid cycle change. We also offer a state-of-the-art online tool, the NICHQ Collaboratory, to support collaboration and engage project participants in shared learning.

Support efficient data collection and management

Over the years, NICHQ has had dozens of opportunities to work with frontline improvement teams to test and refine measurement strategies. We have the expertise to support measure creation, as well as a proprietary platform for collecting, reviewing and reporting data. We can also help harvest data from existing systems and interpret data to determine best practices for moving forward.

Build quality improvement capacity

Any organization dedicated to continuous improvement requires internal expertise on quality improvement methods and tools to be successful. NICHQ can offer in-person, virtual or on-demand trainings on the fundamentals of quality improvement to empower your team to understand and drive quality improvement and system transformation.

Provide expert technical assistance or customized consultation services

NICHQ's exclusive platform for tracking team performance and facilitating collaboration; our extensive network of content experts on all children's health topics; and our expertise in change management allow us to tailor technical assistance to drive change in initiatives of all kinds. This can include providing program management, conducting meetings to review improvement activities and identify gaps, creating strategic plans, developing measurement strategies, interpreting data and providing feedback, and establishing an evaluation infrastructure.
